Head Injury (Baby and Toddler)

Symptoms and their causes

For the first few hours after a head injury expect that your baby / toddler may be pale, quieter than usual or slightly irritable.

Should any of the following symptoms occur, please return to the Accident and Emergency Department:

- Unusual sleepiness or you are unable to wake them properly.
- Persistent vomiting, not related to any intercurrent illness.
- Your baby or toddler acts in a strange or unusual way which persists for more than an hour.
- Your baby / toddler is crying constantly or in an unusual way that you are unable to settle.
- Any collapse or episodes of shaking or jerking movements.
- Your baby / toddler is unable to do things they were previously able to do, for example grasp objects, sit, stand or walk.
- Any new or spreading bruising, particularly around the eyes or ears.
- Any unusual new bleeding or fluid leaking from the ears or nose.

On discharge home

On discharge home your baby / toddler should be treated as normal.
